Abstract:

Two new finds were made during the Society's annual visit to Co. Clare in 1997. These were: an additional inlet to Branch Passage Gallery in Poulmagollum and an extension to the main stream passage in Poulmagree. These two passages are described and some comments made on their geomorphic history. The inlet to Poulmagollum is a short passage fed purely by percolation water. The streamway extension, beyond Sump 1, in Poulmagree is a perched, strike controlled passage and may be related to the unexplored passage that feeds the Inlet Sump.
